HAVE NOW READY

THE CONFIDENTIAL CORRESPONDENCE Of

NAPOLEON BONAPARTE

NAPOLEON BONAPARTE

HIS BROTHER JOSEPH,

Selected and Translated, with Explanatory Notes, from the

Two thick Volumes, 12mo. Price $2.

This book will afford a deeper lesisth into the character of Napoleon than all the biographies that have ever been written.

The following extracts will afford a view of the interest contained in them.

Under date of July 25, 1798, he writes:

"Let me have on my arrival a vills near Paris or in Burgundy. I intend to shut myself up there for the Winter. I am tired at human mature. I want solitude and isolation. Greatness fat gues me, feeling is dried up. At 29 glory has become fat. I have exhausted everything. I have no refugs but pare selfishness. I shall retain my house, and let no one clase occupy in. I have not more than enough to live on. Adieu, my old friend. I never have been unjust to you, as you must admit, though I may have wished to be so. You understand me. Love to your wife and to Jerome."

The following is Najoleon's own account of the battle of Austerlitz:

"Apprendity. Dec. 3, 1905.

Austerlitz:

"AUSTERLITZ, Dec. 3, 1905.

"My Brother: I hope that by the time this courier reaches you, my Aid-de-Camp Lebrun, whom I sent off from the field of lattle, will have so to Paris. After some days of maneuvers, I had yesterday a decided battle. I put to flight the ailled army, commanded by the two Emperors of Germany and Russia in person. It consisted of 50,000 Russians and 30,000 Austrians. I have taken about 40,000 prisoners, among whom are 20 Russian Generals, 40 colors, 100 pieces of cannon, and all the standards of the Russian Inperial Guards. The whole army has covered itself with glory.

"The enemy has left at least from 12,000 to 15,000 men on the field. I do not yet know my own less. I estimate it at 800 or 900 killed, and twice as many wounded. A whole column of the enemy three itself into a lake, and the greater part of them were drowned. I fancy that I still hear the cries of these werethes whom it was impossible to save."

The following letter shows Napuleon's goodness of heart:

ter shows Napoleon's goodness of heart: Napoleon to Joseph.

M. de Stael is in the deepest poverty, and his wife gives de and balls. If you still visit her, would it not be well

Napoleon's care for small matters was remarkable. He kept crime last year:

"My BROTRER: I see from your letter of the 17th that you had received some biscuit, and that 12,000 pair of shoes have reached you from France. Take eare to inform me of the arrival of each consistence of the order to the that I may make sure of not being cheated in my accounts. Count the biscuit one by one; their quality should be good. The shoes ought to be made of stout leather, not pasteboard; they cost me 5f france a pair. If they are not good let me know, I will have deductions made for them in the general settlement."

HORACE GREELEY. -

THE LIFE OF

HORACE GREELEY;

EDITOR OF THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

By James Parton. With Portraits. 12mo, pp. 442. Price $1.25.

It is agreed by friends and foes of Mr. Orceley that no more ably, entertainingly and instructively written biography has ever made its appearance in America. Every one who has any desire for a familiar acquaintance with the famous New-York Editor, should read Mr. Parton's book, and he will know Mr. Greeley as well as though he had been "brought up in the same fown."

"Worthy of a place by the side of the Life of Benjamin Frankin."

"The most spicy and attractive Biography of the day."

"His "Life" is a living epistle, proclaiming that virtuous endeavors and unselfian toil sconer or later will meet a fit recompense."

"Of absorbing interest, and containing much of pleasant hamor, sparkling wit and attractive anecdote." [Bangor Courter." A volume for earnest men and boys to read and study."

"THE LAST LEAF" of the WIDOW

DOTT.
Slightly altered from O. W. Holmes.
I heard of her before.
That she made each reader roar
With her fun;
That the laugh each page increase!
From the first until we ceased,
Having done.
They told me that the trip.

Having done.
They told me that the grin
From the moment I'd begin
Would grow broader—
And that snicker, scream and laugh
With each added paragraph
Would be louder!

At last-I bought the book! And a leisure hour I took To peruse it;

From ear to ear it spread Circling half around my head, And my jaws Are as open now as sin In that fixed evernal grin, From this cause. I feared that I should " bust"

When I orened it at fust-If I did do.
The jury would decide
The crime of "laughtercic Against the Widow.

'I know it is a sin"
For me to laugh and grin
At " the Deacon"—
At his " rheumatis an' pair
But no mortal could refrain rheumatis an' pain;" nortal could refrain, As I reckon Priscilla" bright and fair ! Queen of widows-may no tear Dim your lot? And may "Shadrach" called "the wise," reve as precious in your eyes As BEDOTT.

Says The N. Y. Observer, (second notice):

"We are not surprised at the great popularity of this book; it is so full of quaint but excellent humor, sheeting the follies of common life, and hitting of evils which infest religious societies as well as the community, that everybody loves to read the Papers though much that is in them comes home to number one."

ALONE.

BY MARION HARLAND.

A new Revised (19th) Edition. One elegant 12mo., uniform with the "Hidden Path." Price $1 25.

The present publishers have the pleasure of presenting to the trade and the public their edition of one of the most FASCINATING, INTERESTING AND POPULAR volumes that has been published for many years. Unsided by the usual editors that are made to extend the sale of books of far greater pretensions, it has upon the strength of its own intrinsic merits, reached the extraordinary number of Nineteen Editions in little more than a year—thus, all things considered, outstripping all competitors for the goal of popular favor. Rival editions have been published in England and on the Continent, and now, in thousands of families, the books of Marion Harland are welcome visitors.

in thousends of families, the books of Marion Harland are welcome visitors.

A FEW EXTRACTS FROM LENGTHY REVIEWS OF "ALONE."

"We recognize points in it which deserve high praise for their high merits. True genius alone, for instance, could have conceived and executed the scene between Lacy and ids. The whole episode of the marriage of the widower with the young and fishionable Helen, is capitally given; and its final catastrophe is as thrilling as it is simple and natural. "Charley" is one of the hest drawn people we have met with in print for many a day. Ids., herselt—Larry, Josephine, nurse Rachel, Lynn Holmes, the artist, the Dama family—indeed, almost everybody introduced, even to the merest sketch—are graphic and distinct.
The book is full of herve, and bears marks of that true genius for whose sake much be excussible. We can point to an excent female work as containing finer passages than "Alone."
[Boston Post.

female work as containing finer passages than 'Alone.'"

"There is genius, pathes, humor, and moral in its charming pages; much knowledge of human nature, and power to deline ate character. It rannot fail to be read with deep interest by all who have true feeling and warm sympathies. As a work of the interest of the best we have read in many a day."

"The superior merit of 'Alone' does not consist morely in the interest of the story, with its glowing thoughts and exquisite farcies; not in the faithful portraiture or life and delineations of character; not in the voices of sympathy constantly falling like nouse upon the heart, to quicken its better feelings; nor yet in its unwavering adhesion to what is right and proper in itself; but

"Alone' is a book of great merit, and we recal portions which display a therough knowledge of that art which enters so lorgely into the character of every tale teller—we mean the art of the raconteur. We have seldom met with a work of this kind more gracefully put porth. We commend it most cordially to the whole community." [Southern Literary Mossenger.
